The Introduction

What are online streaming platforms?

A video streaming service is an on demand online entertainment source for TV shows, movies and other streaming media.

- High-Quality Streams.
- Greater Audience Potential.
- Wide Variety of Content Use.
- Ease and Convenience.

- Streaming refers to any media content – live or recorded – delivered to computers and mobile devices via the internet and played back in real time.
- Podcasts, webcasts, movies, TV shows and music videos are common forms of streaming content.
- These services provide an alternative to cable and satellite on demand service, often at a lower cost. Use of streaming services often requires fees, either per view or subscription.

Problem Statement

- In recent years, the Web has undergone a tremendous growth regarding both content and users. This has led to an information overload problem in which people are finding it increasingly difficult to locate the right information at the right time.
- This abstract studies the feasibility of the integration of a recommender engine as a module to the online streaming platform.
- It mines movie databases to collect all the important information, such as, popularity and attractiveness, required for recommendation.
- It generates movie swarms not only convenient for movie producers to plan a new movie but also useful for movie recommendation.

Objectives

1. High-Quality Streams

Online streaming service with a robust infrastructure and a good content delivery network (CDN) to achieve high-quality video.

2. Greater Audience Potential

Online streaming, however, you can invite as many people as you like to “come Together”. Online streaming your event can make your content accessible to these people whom you wouldn’t reach otherwise.

3. Ease and Convenience

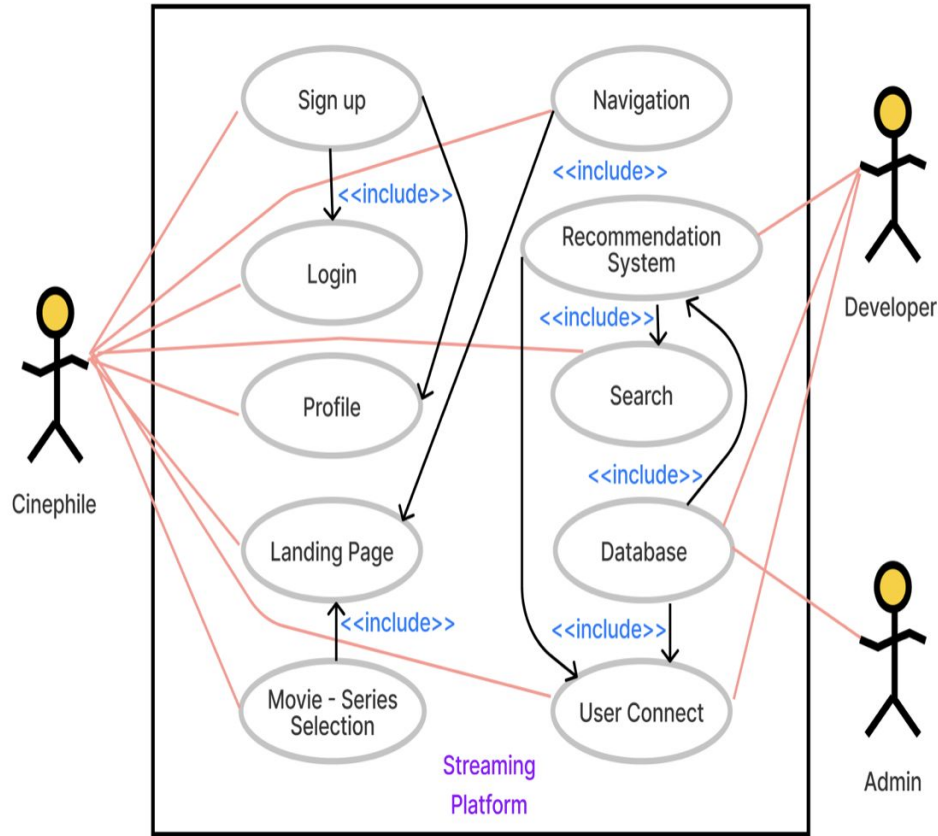

Online streaming can be very simple. All you need are relevant video and audio equipment, an internet connection, an encoder, and a trusty streaming platform.

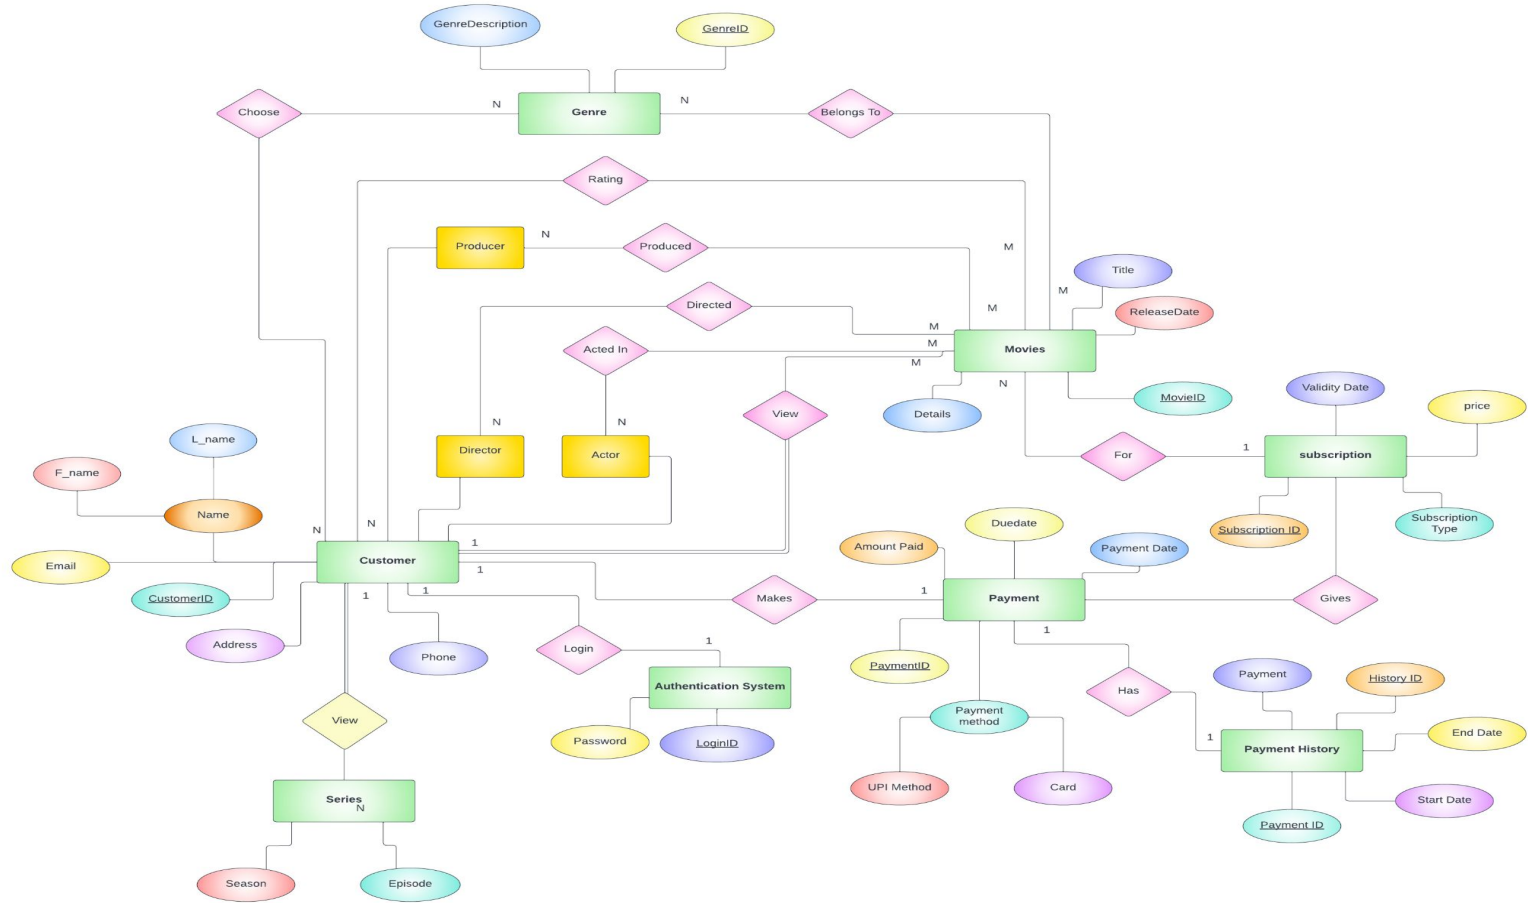

4. Customer Support

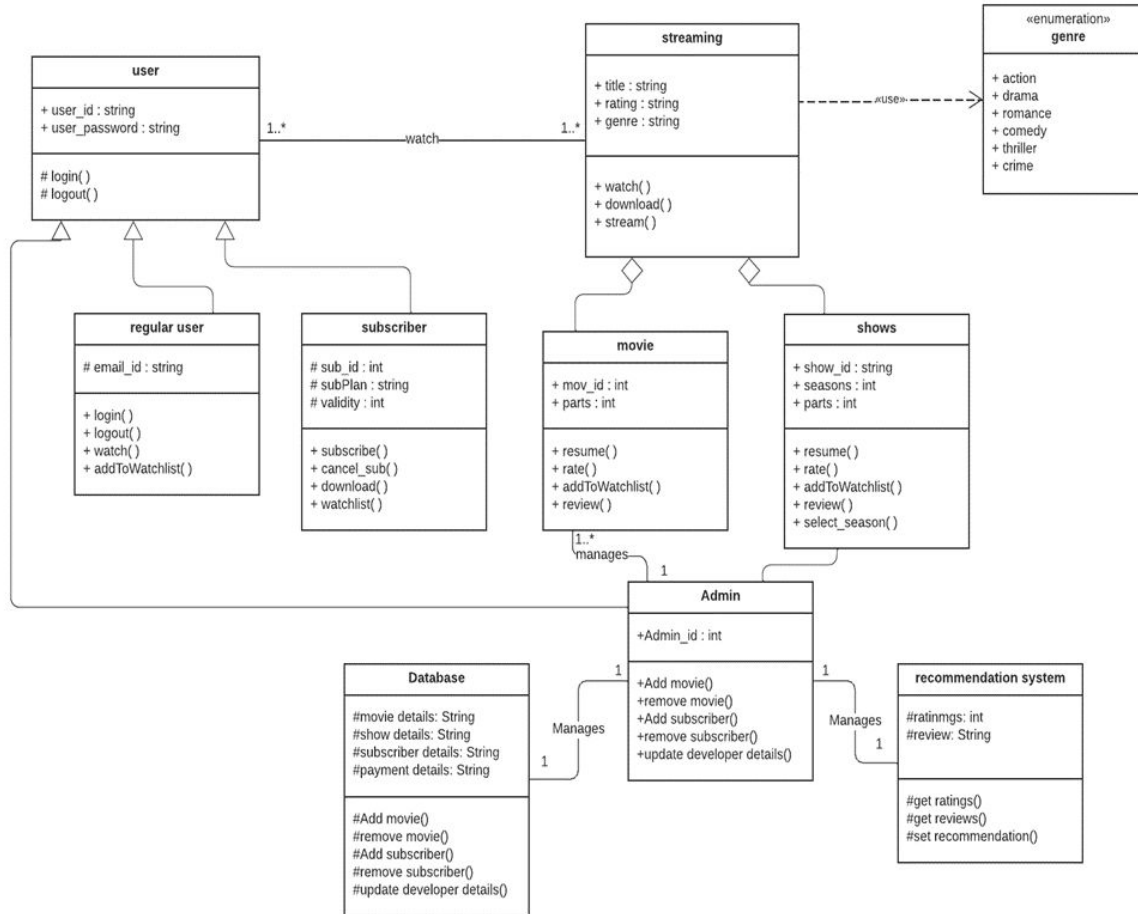

Watching Movies on your own, your only support will be Google or the information you already know about Online streaming. A reliable Online streaming service will provide you with ongoing customer support and will guide you through any difficulties you encounter. When streaming Movies, you need a live support team by your side.
